A silhouette of a man sitting on a grassy hill at sunset, reading a book. The background is a warm, orange and yellow sky with soft clouds. The man is in profile, facing right, and is holding an open book with both hands. The lighting is dramatic, with the sun low on the horizon, creating a strong contrast between the dark silhouette of the man and the bright sky.

The sum of human knowledge is growing exponentially. So why should we, in this age of such great knowledge, still turn to such ancient writings as the Bible? Surely the psychologists, scientists and scholars of this generation know more than uneducated writers thousands of years ago, right?

That would be sound reasoning if the Bible was simply a collection of men's best thoughts. But the Bible remains way ahead of today's brightest minds precisely because it was never of human origin. God Himself inspired the different authors, spanning many centuries, as they wrote word for word what God had to say to them and to us. It remains as relevant today as it was 2000 years ago. There's no greater source of wisdom to guide us in our daily lives, teach us how to love, guide us through difficult moral choices, comfort us through grief and reveal the truth about ourselves, our world and the God who created both.

If you want to think the way God thinks, you simply need to read His thoughts, penned by His prophets and translated into nearly every language on earth. God wants to speak to you today. Will you listen?

Your word I have treasured in my heart,
that I may not sin against You.
